There are always some people in this world who are always wondering when they see a man enjoying a nice looking pipe whether it is the real thing or just a cheap imitation of one, whether the mouthpiece is genuine amber or just common celluloid and if the mouthpiece unscrews easily. Fred Hopper bumped into one of those inquisitive fellows a few evenings ago and as a result of his adventure a certain barber had to separate himself from $1.75 to replace the pipe he broke while trying to unscrew the stem to make a thorough investigation. As a result Fred has a new pipe and Greely now stands as an expert on removing the mouthpiece from the bowl. If you want to know how easily a pipestem breaks, by dropping into Fox, Bros. shop you can get full information on the subject, also how many shaves and haircuts it will require to pay for the pipe bought.
