An Old Relic.

John Remaille has in his possession an old book containing the record of his regiment during the Civil War, which he prizes very highly. The following is taken from this book and is the address of Colonel James A. Garfield to the 42d Ohio volunteers at Camp Buel, Ky., on January 18, 1862:

"Soldiers of the 18th Brigade—I am proud of you all. In four weeks you have marched some 80 to 100 miles, over almost impassable roads. One night in four you have slept, with nothing but a misty sky above. You have marched in the face of a foe of more than double your number, led on by chiefs who have won a national renown under the old banner, entrenched in hills of his own choosing, and strengthened by all the appliances of military art. With no other experience than the consciousness of your own brave manhood, you have driven him from his strong-hold, nursed his glorious flight and compelled him to meet you in battle. When forced to fight, he sought the shelter of the rocks and hills. You drove him from his position, leaving scores of bloody dead unburied. His artillery thundered against you, but you compelled him to flee by the light of his burning stores, and leave even the banner of his rebellion behind.

I greet you as brave men. Our country will not forget you. She will not forget the sacred dead who fell beside you, nor those of your number who won scars of honor in the field. I have recalled you from the pursuit that you may regain vigor for still greater exertions. Let no one tarnish his honor by any act unworthy an American soldier. Remember your duties as American citizens, and sacredly respect the rights and property of those with whom you come in contact. Let it not be said that good men dread the approach of an American army. Officers and soldiers you have done your duty nobly. For this I thank you, and bid you "Hail, hail!"

Mrs. W. H. Dickinson, who has been a resident of this place for a good many years, is packing her household goods and expects to leave for Flat the last of this week to reside in order to be with her son and daughter. She has sold her house and lot to E. T. Tubbs, who plans to move some time next spring when Orrin Tubbs can arrange to return here from Kalamazoo and live on the Tubbs farm. Mrs. Dickinson's many friends will regret to have her leave.

President Anderson Injured.

President Charles Anderson suffered very painful injuries Tuesday noon at the elevator while at work putting a belt on a small pulley. He slipped and in some manner his left hand was caught between the belt and pulley and twisted entirely around breaking the big bone in his fore arm twice and the small bone once also badly wrenching his shoulder. Dr. Snell was called and reduced the fractures and bandaged the arm for Mr. Anderson.
