January 6, 1927

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Morgan, O. F. Morgan and Mrs. Diehl attended the funeral of Annabell Lamie, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lamie, Thursday.

The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ilo Ferris gave a shower in their honor Thursday evening at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ferris. The house was prettily decorated in Christmas colors.

A large Christmas tree formed a bank in front of which the bride and groom stood for a mock wedding ceremony, the friends feeling the knot would be more securely tied by this act. Wellington Barnes spoke the solemn words using the impressive ring service from Sears & Roebuck catalogue.

Miss Ava Tubbs organist played the wedding march. The bride's gown was of tulle in quaint Spanish style. A tulle veil of rare old lace fell in graceful folds to the hem of her gown. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses tied to a rolling pin. Miss Francis Kroger as maid-of-honor wore a lavender tulle gown. Two brides maids, Miss Della Eitel and Miss Anna VanDeventer wore similar gowns of tulle. Little June Offley carried the ring on a dainty cabbage leaf. Ben Slout attended the groom as best man. The ushers were Fred Kroger, Burr Chanco, and Luben Barns. After the services ice cream and cake were served. The "Brides cake" was baked by the mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. F. R. Kroger. The happy couple received many beautiful and useful presents.

The twenty-ninth of December dawned cold, clear, and calm to all outward appearances, but a close observer in our village might have noticed that the air was full of static whenever a group of High School people passed by. The issue before these enterprising youngsters was the same as it has been since "Basket Ball" has become prominent in our schools: "Beats the Alumni."

It seems that the alumni is one of their closest friends and still one of their most dangerous opponents. For the past six or seven years the alumni have had a winning team, but this year with the High School girls team excelling in basket ball tactics the alumni girls felt rather weak and decided to play a defensive game. With the most appreciated help of Roy Matthews the alumni took heart and sallied forth. The line up was as follows. L. and A. Boyd, forwards; J. Hopper and B. Gaut, centers; E. Powers and J. Boyd, guard. Substitutions were M. Schram for L. Boyd. "Toot" Southern for J. Hopper, G. Sherrard for E. Powers, and M. Hawes for J. Boyd. The final score gave the alumni the lead 13-12. A great amount of credit is due M. Hawes and G. Sherrard as the last half the High School girls did not score, however both teams played a good game barring all rules and bordering on the realm of football.
