Mrs. Belle Kelley, our night telephone operator, and daughter Miss Doreen Kelley of the Echo force accompanied Dr. McLaughlin to his cottage at Dimond Lake, Saturday night, for a weeks vacation. The day operators at the Bell exchange are taking turns in doing night work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Childs will motor to St. Charles Friday. A Lansing truck took their household goods today. We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Childs as residents of Vermontville, but rejoice with them at the fine position Mr. Childs has as Superintendent of the St. Charles. He is a young man the old home town is justly proud of and their many friends wish them success in their new field.

The list of Vermontville school Intermediate and Primary pupils published last week has been interesting to even more local residents than we had anticipated. Several have inquired who the teachers in the school were at that time. Charles McKenny was principal and high school teacher, Miss Emma Fletcher grammar room, Miss Maggie Collie intermediate, and Miss Della Wheeler primary. Only fifteen of these ninety-eight little people graduated from our high school. Many of them moved away before entering high school, some of them passed away and others dropped out just before the senior year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren have returned to the home of his grandfather, Dr. Snell, Charles has been on a trip to Milwaukee while his wife visited her people at Galesburg.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Tubbs and Paul took a long motor trip Sunday, accompanied by the writer, covering some of Orin's and Paul's grocery routes into Barry county and the southern part of Eaton. They called on Mrs. Ida Denton Norton and family in Maple Grove township and there also visited with her sister Mrs. Ella Taylor, our faithful Nashville correspondent. Mrs. Norton was not in the best of health and after such a visit it must have been much better or decidedly worse. They are sisters of Mrs. Jay Hawkins and the family were pioneer West Vermontville residents.

Mrs. Arthur Tyler and children spent several days last week and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Granger, and John Tyler. Mr. and Mrs. Granger's 39th wedding anniversary was Saturday. They celebrated that day with threshers, but Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Amspacher and Mary and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Granger spent the day with them in honor of the event. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carey and Neil were Monday guests.

Delvin Brotherton, commercial teacher in Vermontville school in 1924-'25, and Miss Dorothy Satterlee, a graduate of Charlotte high school and Eaton County Normal and who taught in the Chance district two years and the Hovey school last year, were married in Hastings Saturday. Miss Satterlee was a freshman in Vermontville school when Mr. Brotherton was here. They will reside in Hancock where he has taught for seven years.

Miss Ethlyn Kidder of Racine, Wis., was in town Saturday, calling on a few friends, on her way to Lansing to visit her brother Arthur Kidder. She had been attending the summer school at Kalamazoo. The Frank Rawson family held their annual reunion at Lake Odes Sunday, July 31st. Charles Rawson and family from Ohio were unable to attend. The other brothers and sisters were there, and nearly all the grandchildren.

get-together of former members of Vermontville grange at the pleasant farm home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Thrun on Wednesday evening, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Rogers and family who are visiting Vermontville friends for a few days. Reverend Rogers will be remembered as the pastor of the Congregational Church here a few years ago, and he and his estimable wife were active members of Vermontville grange during their stay here. About ninety of their old friends were present at the social to greet them. After considerable time was spent in social greetings and visiting, several musical numbers were rendered: Mr. Walter Ford, violin and Mrs. Ford, piano, also Rev. Rogers, violin assisted Mr. Kamiensky saxophone and Wilma Bell, piano, in his usual happy and efficient manner. Following this Mr. Rogers was called upon for some remarks, and was introduced as the Master of the North Middleboro, Mass. grange over which he presides in connection with his pastoral duties. He responded in a pleasing way, expressing his great pleasure in meeting old friends, and their appreciation of the honor tendered them by this gathering, and also telling something of his work in North Middleboro where they have been located since leaving Vermontville five years ago. Mrs. Rogers also responded briefly expressing her appreciation of the event and pleasure in meeting the former friends. Mrs. George Ward gave two pleasing readings. Rev. Niles closed the program with a few well chosen remarks after which ice cream and cake were served.

Goodbyes were then said and the company departed for their homes. The best wishes of all are extended to the Rogers family, and they will always find a warm welcome when they come to Vermontville. They will leave on Friday to visit relatives and friends in other parts of the State, returning to their home by the latter part of the month.
