Mr. Lake and his friend succeeded in securing two large bags of pears and fremoving them, undetected, from the orchard to their homes.

By a peculiar co-incidence, four women have died in the Lake home in the past 37 years, at in-home in the past 37 years, at intervals of almost even years. The first was the first Mrs. Lake, who died March 24, 1892.

"Grandma" Lee, a distant relative, died at the Lake home on March 24, 1896, just four years later. The second Mrs. Lake died March 26, 1915.

March 26, 1915.
These three were pared for during their last illness by Mr. Lake's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sadie E. Lake, who died March 18, this year, Homer E. Bale, a son-in-tlaw of Mr. Lake, dled March 13 of this year at his home in Fenn. of this year at his home in Fennbville. He was for many years a well-known resident of Vermont he fell by each other's hands,

byille

t Mr. Lake has a great-granddaughter, Miss Glenna Lake of a Charlotte, who was the valedictorian of the Charlotte High school dias of 1928. She is attending the Eaton County normal now, an will teach the Fairview school no heast of the city the coming action year. a great-grand ed their intention of Cooping some of he pears. Hearing of this, the hear orchard owner save out the word that he had a loaded gun just shiste the door, at his VA. house and the would not heatata to use it on, the first person who thied to use it on, the first person who thied to use it on, the first person who thied to the steal his pears. Who was the confidence a young stead pears, so, they hit upon a onder. Some were kindled some of those fine, luscious large-sized pears, so, they hit upon a onder. Some were kindled some to get them. They took that him with their plans. The trio went to the barnyard of the pear re wavering, and broke out on the word of the pear re wavering, and broke out on the line and the Irish youth cautiously tall went to the lead cow and removed the gate into a nearby lane, closed the gate into upon the cattle into a nearby lane, closed the gate into upon the gate into urden, and cheerfully throw a corn field. Tying the bell to his a corn field and rang theomans, the abuse of women, me bell as a cow would in walking about. The farmer heard the considering and the confiled and rang the one and called to his ter wife to so with him and help gettenslaved; let us depart from the youth found they were getting the sound of the bell and quickly the would on the bell and quickly the soampered to some far part of the gate and one the game was going on, Mr. Lake and his friend succeeded in securing two large bags of pears and removing them, under the cobe in the instant the subscience of the same was going on, Mr. Lake and his friend succeeded in securing two large bags of pears and removing them, under the begin on the instant the s to begin on the instant the. intoxicated spirits no softer fect. They embraced their even with tears, and, at the n the passive instruments of to the heart. Not a man But they thought that they privid them many minutes. r most valuable effects, and ese sumptuous funeral piles. h by lot as the general execuper, still clasping the lifeless n, held up their necks to the