A SONG FOR TODAY

By Edgar A. Guest

Old-Time Christmas

Let's go back to Christmas
 As it was in days of old,
 When love and laughter filled the place
 Of silver and of gold,
 The Christmas Day at mother's,
 With the family gathered there,
 A turkey on the table
 And a kin in every chair.

A Christmas ruled by money
 Is not the thing we need,
 Give us a gentler merriment
 Than comes from selfish greed,
 Give us the old-time laughter,
 The old-time Christmas prayer,
 With turkey on the table
 And a kin in every chair.

Let's trim the home with holly,
 Hang mistletoe above,
 And pass around to one and all
 Our simplest gifts of love,
 Let's be once more united
 And shut the door on care,
 With turkey on the table
 And a kin in every chair.

We've tried the costly Christmas
 With gaudy lights that burn,
 This year to love and laughter
 And home ties let's return,
 Let's have the Christmas dinner
 Which loving hands prepare,
 With turkey on the table
 And a kin in every chair.
