

LUNDQUIST MEETS DEATH ON HIGHWAY

WAS PRESIDENT OF SUNFIELD
MANY YEARS; HAD SERVED AS MASTER OF POMONA GRANGE

Blame Attached To Driver Who Hit Him

Charles Lundquist, 52, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lundquist, Sunfield township pioneers, was instantly killed between the Earl Clever and Jay Green farms on U. S. 27 about 7 p. m. Monday night. He was hit by a car driven by Edward Howard, a Charlotte young man, who brought the injured man to the Community hospital. His neck was broken and he died instantly in the opinion of Dr. H. A. Moyer. Lundquist, according to the officer, was driving to Lansing and his car had run out of gas and he was walking back to Charlotte. According to Howard and his aunt, who was with him, Lundquist was walking down the center of the pavement with the traffic, and they did not notice the object until too late to turn. No blame is attached to the driver, who personally reported to the officers and told his story.

Was Well Known In County
Lundquist was well known about the county; he served one year as master of the Pomona grange and in a recent campaign was the democratic candidate for register of deeds. Mrs. Albert Beardley, wife of a former U. S. pastor here, was a sister and Mrs. Fors, who was brought up in the Lundquist home, now a state bank examiner, is a nephew. A son and a son, both of them in school in Pittsburg, were born here. Five years ago Mr. Lundquist moved from Sunfield to Lansing where he had been fairly successful in real estate.

Body taken to Sunfield.
The body was removed from the hospital to the Cheney funeral home but later in the evening H. B. Sunfield undertaker came here for body taking it to Sunfield. The funeral services were held Thursday.

MRS. E. B. HAMMOND

Clara E. Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Williams, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, October 11, 1852. After a brief illness in which all that human hands could do to restore her to health, she passed from this life February 10th, 1930.

When a small girl she moved with her parents from Boston to a farm a few miles east of Vermontville. When she was 22 her parents moved into the village of Vermontville. On May 7, 1875 she united in marriage to Mr. Earl Hammond. Their entire married life has been spent in Vermontville. She was a faithful wife, a kind mother, and good neighbor, and the world is poorer for her passing.

Besides her friends she leaves her husband, Mr. Earl Hammond; her sister, Mrs. Addie Briggs, and her son, Mr. Harry Hammond, all of Vermontville, and one daughter, Mrs. Irma Inwood of Chicago.

Funeral services were held at the home at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. H. Phillips, and burial was made at Woodlawn cemetery.

From a Sinner's Diary
(To Bertha Thomas)

Bertha, that was good. It's in my scrapbook, surrounded by diaries. I'll borrow one to send, my pessimist. It will tickle her to distraction. I bet you're the one who spit venom at me so one time when I was after Tribune subscribers. You wanted to run your umbrella in me and spread it. Remember yet you were pretty blame good looking.

As per liking 'em, Bertha, who does? After the typers and readers have re-muddled 'em I don't know 'em myself. If they're too deep for you you'll just have to skip 'em. For as long as any editor is dummy enough to print 'em I shall bombard him with 'em. Always have, always will. They stew right out of me, same as your wrath does you at the sight of 'em.
