Find Carl Woolever in Possession of Pistol, Rex Carpenter with Flashlight

Two youths, Carl Woolever, 1206 West Hillsdale street, and Rex Carpenter, 500 North Chestnut street, were in the city jail Friday facing investigation following their arrest Thursday night.

Local police say they may know something of an attempt to break into a Gates and Son store at 110 North Bismar boulevard, and may have stolen an automobile from Mason.

Woolever had a .22 calibre revolver in his possession, while Carpenter had a flashlight. Both wore gloves.

Others arrested included Roland K. Barrett, Flint, on a charge of issuing checks without funds. He was returned to Lansing Thursday.

Religious zeal was still further animated by pride, avarice, and jealousy—they began to preach against them with fatal, if not convincing, energy.

The ministers of confiscation and execution spread through Spain; many of the new Christians fled to France, to Portugal, and to Africa. Some, condemned for contumacy, ventured to fly to Rome, and to appeal to the Pope against their judges. The Pope himself trembled at his own act. ## MORE FIFTY YEARS AGO ITEMS

The children of Vermilion and vicinity fifty years ago were always interested in the writings of Mr. Milo Deuel (Bizon Bizon) of Bismark. A fair sample was to be found in The Hawk of April 28, 1883 from which issue we published so many items last week. The Bismark news readers were like a healthy report.—Doctors sighing for a job.—This reporter in a coarse shirt and between two plow handles.—Elder Cook a resident of our burg.—The saw mill still for repairs.—The singing frog is heard.—If you want a good buggy hunt up the Prince boys and get a Ward & Dolson side spring, and be happy.—Any lady who does not make a call at every house in a small village before nine o'clock in the morning is not much of a woman for business.

Ye living men come look around, Where so cheaply you can buy, Come where good goods do abound, And where the prices are not high. Why, that's at Bismark! In a few days you'll see an ad, Telling what I have to sell, As in trade I will not lag While at Bismark I shall dwell, That's where I stay. All ye readers of the HAWK Come and see me at my place, And at least have a talk With one with an honest face, That's me.

Bezon Bizon.

Somehow the French aimed by entering into their intolerant spirit to gain his throne, he was too wise to follow it when the throne was won.
