Missionary Dies at 48

Miss Elinor Briggs Served in Mexico

Vermontville — Funeral services for Miss Elinor Briggs, 48, of Vermontville R1, former teacher and missionary, who died Monday at Nashville convalescent home, will be held at 3:30 Thursday at Ainger Bible school near here. Burial will be in Kalamo cemetery.

A native of this area and a graduate of Vermontville High school, Olivet college and the University of Michigan, Miss Briggs taught at Vermontville High school from 1930 to 1936. She also taught at Birch Run, Columbiaville and Corunna before entering missionary work.

Went to Mexico in 1946. She studied at Moody Bible institute of Chicago and Wickliffe camp at Norman, Okla., before leaving for Mexico in 1946. She was there five years, translating parts of the Bible into the language of the Zapoteco Indians, before returning briefly to the United States. She later went back to Mexico but poor health forced her retirement in 1954.

Surviving are her father, Irvin of Vermontville R1, and a sister, Mrs. Hadley Abernathy of Evanston, Ill.

The body is at the Pray funeral home at Charlotte.

MISSIONARY DIES Had Worked with Indians Was Making Bible Translation

(Special to The State Journal) NASHVILLE, March 21 — A Vermontville woman missionary who worked on a translated Bible for a Mexican Indian tribe, almost to the day of her death, died Monday evening at a convalescent home here.

She was Miss Elinor Briggs, 48, who had completed seven volumes of the Bible in the tongue of the Capoteco tribe.

She had become seriously ill three weeks ago, but continued her work.

Born in Vermontville township, Miss Briggs graduated from the school there in 1924, received her A. B. degree from Olivet college in 1928, and her master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1949.

She taught in Vermontville high school from 1930 to 1936, then, successively, at Birch Run, Columbiaville and Corunna. It was while teaching in Corunna that she decided to become a missionary. She completed preparatory work at Moody Bible institute, Chicago, in 1946.

Once with the Capoteco tribe, which has no written language, she was able to work out an alphabet and begin her translation of the Bible.

Surviving are the father, Irvin Briggs of Shayton rd., six miles southeast of Vermontville, and a sister, Mrs. Hadley Abernathy, Evanston, Ill.

Services will be held Thursday at 3:30 p. m. at Ainger Bible church near Vermontville. Burial will be in Kalamo cemetery.
