OLD VERMONTVILLE CEMETERY, EATON CO., MICHIGAN
Contributed by Mrs. Chalmers A. Monteith of Martin, Michigan.

ter: This old cemetery is one mile west of Vermontville on the south side of the Hastings road. It is in a deplorable condition, with graves so sunken that it is dangerous to walk around as myrtle and briars hide many pits. Lilac thickets completely surround some graves. Many of the stones are broken and often on their sides. Some of these I was unable to raise. It may be that some were missed due to obscurity and to the fact that I had no prying rod with me. There is a steep bank on the side next the road from which some of the stones can be clearly seen. That of earliest date is at the west end near the road and reads "Alex Clark died July 3, 1840." The latest is "Moses Cross died Dec. 23, 1891." A letter to the Supervisor of the township asking for any facts known by him regarding the history of this burying ground has not been answered. Those grouped together below seemed to be on the same plot. One indicates that the stone has fallen, two **, that it is also broken. The inscriptions were copied in June, 1940. RRM
